

Copy of a letter to John Flamsteed from a committee of the Royal Society

Author: Isaac Newton

Source: EL/N1/64, Royal Society Library, London, UK

Published online: June 2014

<64r>

< insertion from the top left of f 64r >

A Letter to the Reverend M^r John Flamsteed
Concerning His Astronomical Observations sent by the Royal Society for that purpose

< text from f 64r resumes >

Sir,

The Committee of the Royal Society appointed for that purpose, finding You have not delivered to them a Copy of Your last Years Observations, according to the Direction of Her Majesties most Gracious Letter of the 12th. of December 1710. do hereby demand Your compliance therewith, and now the Six Months allowed You being Elapsed, let You know, that they expect You will send Your Observations to the Societies House in Crane-Court, according to the Meaning of the said Letter.

We are

Your most humble Servants

< insertion from lower down f 64r >

[Signed]

< text from higher up f 64r resumes >

Is. Newton P.R.S.

Hans Sloane

R. Mead.

Edm: Halley.

Abr. Hill.

< insertion from lower down f 64r >

[superscribed]

< text from higher up f 64r resumes >

To The Reverend
M^r John Flamsted
at the Royal Observatory
at Greenwich

These

< insertion from lower down f 64r >

Memorandum: this is an Exact Copy of a Letter which I delivered to M^r. Flamsted (July 4. 1712) at the Royal Observatory: who returned this Answer, that he would cause a Copy to be taken {of his} last Years Observations, and send them accordingly to the {Royal} Society by Michaelmasse next.

{J. Thorpe}

< text from higher up f 64r resumes >

<64v>

< insertion from the left margin of f 64v >

July. 1712

N^o 6

Entered. LB. Vol. 1{5}

at beginning.

< text from f 64v resumes >
