

Thomas Smart: Untitled, undated

Author: Isaac Newton

Source: MINT 15/17/9, National Archives, Kew, Richmond, Surrey, UK

<5v>

[1]

Thomas Smart Bedell of Thieving Lane Ward in S^t. Margarets parish Westminster deposeth that abouts one of the Clock on Sunday morning he went to the house of Iohn Penniston (being the Feather Tavern in Kingstreet westminster) to see what company was there and here saw Iosias Bellon whose wife is sister to M^{rs}. Penniston the wife of the said Iohn Pennyston and asking what man that was M^{rs}. Pennyston made answer that it was one of her Lodgers a very {evill} man and the Deponent asking how he should know that she answered that he should be forthcomeing in the morn And the Deponent returning within less then an hour with Iohn White constable and William Blackshaw Bedell the said M^{rs}. Pennyston own that the man above mentioned whom this Deponent had seen there before was Iosias Bellon her sisters husband and said that he was just gone home and she would see him forthcoming in the morning

Thomas Smart

[2]

[1] 9

[2] Capt die et anno preedict coram
Is Newton
